In Search of Truth: A Conversation with Riccardo Muti

by Susanna Venturi

Getting to the heart of the opera repertoire has always been a hallmark of Riccardo Muti, who never bowed out of “popular” operas, and always took the risk of going against the grain, delving into all scores well beyond common interpretative conventions with a view to meeting the composer’s wishes. Both Cavalleria rusticana and Pagliacci belong to that repertoire: what is the place of these two operas within your extraordinary artistic career?

These operas belong to the so-called Verismo tradition, and are among the best in the Italian repertoire. It is just natural that they are still two of the most represented operas worldwide.

I have been very fond of these scores since 1970, when I conducted them in the Teatro Comunale in Florence. Roman Vlad was the artistic director at the time, and together we decided to stage them because they had been missing from that theatre for a very long time. Of course we could not foresee the uproar that followed our “blasphemous” decision: an entire section of the intellectual élite considered them rubbish... In short, we and the Orchestra del Maggio had to face the hostility resulting from the peculiar ideological and political climate of the time, and especially from sterile prejudice that had nothing to do with music. Luckily, that is all in the past now. Anyway, we stood firm, and the début was a huge success, with Mauro Bolognini as director, sets by Luciano Damiani, and such protagonists as Richard Tucker in the role of Canio in Pagliacci... He was a tenor of unquestionable experience, who had performed and recorded under Toscanini's baton, and was a regular guest at the Metropolitan. The return of these two operas caused an intense stir... And I felt exactly the same when, years later, at La Scala, I began to rehearse Traviata, which I was bringing back to Milan after an absence of over a quarter-century.

A recent historical recording has re-proposed that staging of Pagliacci in Florence, but, just a few years later, you had the opportunity to record an important version of both operas from the podium of the Philharmonia Orchestra.

It was in the late '70s, and, indeed, that was a lucky staging: a young José Carreras was starring in both operas, with Renata Scotto as Nedda, Montserrat Caballé as Santuzza, and, as Mamma Lucia, nothing less than Astrid Varnay, the legendary Wagnerian soprano, who is also best remembered for her interpretation of Lady Macbeth... Concerning this recording, I have an anecdote that says a lot about the care and knowledge that are necessary to do justice to these scores. When we got to the finale of Cavalleria rusticana, we had to record the famous closing line, "Hanno ammazzato compare Turiddu!". It is usually one of chorus women who yells that out. Yet, after trying some of the choristers, I realized that none of them could do it: they either had a strong English accent, or the colour of their voices was too distant from the intonation of Southern Italy... I know that well from experience, having been raised there! This scream cannot be dealt with by simply raising your voice... A sort of primal gush must flow in it, like the echo of a funeral dirge, or the cries of wailers... In short, for the first and only time in my life, I accepted to keep an input channel “free” while recording, and add the track with the scream later, on top of the rumble of the timpani and the murmur of the choir... Usually, my “artistic ethics” demand that everything—voices and orchestra—is recorded in the same session... But here I needed a “Latin” voice. And so we moved the English troupe to the RAI studios in Naples, and I asked a great actress to lend us her voice, even though her name does not appear on the album as a member of the cast: Isa Danieli, who had worked a lot with a giant like Eduardo De Filippo. I still remember the impression she made on the English sound engineers beyond the glass panel of the recording studio, when she let out her scream. Her power and expressiveness were completely new to them: her scream came right out from the belly of history, and contained in itself the tears of centuries-old pain. Because when we talk about Verismo, or “realism”, we are not just dealing with a story that needs to stick to reality. We need to delve deep into the cultural context where the operas were conceived, and to which they refer. We shouldn’t forget that Leoncavallo was born in Naples, and that Mascagni conceived his Cavalleria in Cerignola, where he had come in touch with the local traditions and moods he then translated into the score.

In addition to a common setting in the heart of Southern Italy—Calabria for Pagliacci and Sicily for Cavalleria, the plots of the two operas show undoubted similarities, since they are both drenched in love, jealousy and blood. But what are the traits that make each of them unique?

These are two completely different worlds, both from the point of view of the libretto, and from a musical perspective. Cavalleria is an expressive miracle: it is like a natural stream of spring water flowing from the first note to the last, or like an arrow flying high in the sky and quickly burning out. Pagliacci, on the other hand, while maintaining some traits of an explosive natural power, is more complex: its orchestration is more refined, and its sense of harmonic structure clearly derives from the great Neapolitan school of composition. After all, Leoncavallo had been educated and trained in that environment. Indeed, he had also studied under famed poet Carducci, and penned the libretto himself! But at the same time, Leoncavallo had assimilated Wagner's compositional and philosophical lesson, and had "Italianized" it. See, for example, the abstract, metaphysical voice in the Prologue, sung by the baritone, who steps onto the stage to introduce the dramatic plot: while here he dwells on the affinity between theatrical fiction and real life, in the end he comes back to close the opera on an impersonal note with the final line, “the comedy is over!” Now, speaking of misleading traditions: while the prevailing habit fills this opening section with high notes the composer had never intended, the current performance practice has the tenor, Canio, speak the final line instead of the baritone. This tradition may have been started by the great Caruso, but is totally devoid of dramatic purpose: only thus does the ensuing grief-stricken scream from the orchestra retain all its tragic and disruptive power.

So, how should these operas be dealt with? How can justice be done?

First of all, in order to fully understand them, in order to capture the essence of their drama and violence, one must appreciate the cultural subsoil where they strike their roots, that is, the cultural context of Southern Italy: if you are not aware of all this, you might try to highlight the operas’ expressive power by exaggerating or brutalizing them, actually debasing them for the sake of a mistakenly gross idea of “Italianness”. For example, both operas are pervaded by a sense of honour and jealousy that should not be judged, nor should it be unnecessarily taken as a pretext for far-fetched director’s choices. Instead, it should be highlighted and contextualized through a knowledge of the world that expressed it. This is why I remember with great satisfaction the work of director Liliana Cavani on both operas, which I conducted right here, at the Ravenna Festival, in 1996 and 1998, with the excellent Orchestra of the Bologna Municipal Theatre. However, as I have said, we should clear the field of all bad interpretative habits. Which is exactly what I intend to do with the students of the Academy. Specifically, I am thinking of the versions I conducted from the podium of the Philharmonia in London, but also of the Cavalleria I recently proposed in concert form with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra: in both cases, not only were these orchestras truly great, but they were also free from the typical bad habits of routine performance. And this is an ideal condition.

What does the Verismo repertoire represent for an interpreter, within the history of Italian opera? And how can Mascagni and Leoncavallo be said to be the heirs of Verdi?

In addition to the harmonic expertise I mentioned before, especially Leoncavallo's, you should consider the melodic streak. It is no coincidence that Verdi, talking about Mascagni, showed appreciation for his love of melody, a trait which he considered to be a merit. After all, Verismo operas are especially fascinating because of their instantly-pleasing and captivating melody, despite their vehemence and wild passions. And of course, as my Maestro, Antonino Votto, used to say, it is not easy to write a graceful melody: in fact, we should not think that these stunning melodies are the result of a spontaneous or improvised act. Indeed, like all truly memorable tunes, they are the result of a painstaking research work. And consider that, in the '50s, this very ability was almost seen as a defect in composers like Puccini and Tchaikovsky. Luckily, this is no longer the case. On the other hand, a musician like Gustav Mahler was very well aware of the value of Italian composers at the turn of the twentieth century: as a conductor, he loved them, and regularly performed their work. Among other things, he conducted both Cavalleria and Pagliacci, and indeed maintained an interesting correspondence with Leoncavallo concerning the staging of Pagliacci.

So, what will the young conductors and répétiteurs of the Academy learn from these operas?

These are difficult operas, because, as I said, they can easily be turned into over-emphatic or gross renditions. And here's why, in recent years, I have been trying to entrust young musicians with what I have learned from the masters who came before me. I would like them to fully appreciate the symphonic and dramatic texture of these scores, to capture their value and respect them in all their beauty. But make no mistake: I have no monopoly on truth. What I do is keep looking. And I think this is a perfect test bench, and a useful experience for young musicians.

Literature to Music: beyond Verismo

by Gregorio Moppi

As an operatic genre, Verismo is not easily defined. At least, it is not easily judged against the standards of the literary movement of Verismo, where it had its origins. First of all, musical Verismo started nearly twenty years after the birth of literary Verismo, usually identified with Verga's short story Nedda, published in 1874, while real modern life only made its débüt on opera stages in 1890, with Mascagni's Cavalleria rusticana. Secondly, because Verismo operas did not always fully comply with the poetics and themes of literary Verismo, based on the description of the sub-proletarian, plebeian humanity of southern Italy, which the author observed with detachment in the Positivistic certainty of providing an impersonal, objective portrait. Musical Verismo, instead, did not only focus on a tranche de vie, or on the stories of humble people often taken from the crime column. It also dealt with middle-class or aristocratic stories, either contemporary or from the past, in Italy and elsewhere. In this period, opera was growing in popularity, providing its enlarging audience with plausibility and strong emotions. But, rather than by their subject matter, Verismo operas were characterized by their dramatic and musical qualities: simple, condensed plots, physical action, a marked presence of the orchestra in a continuous, equal dialogue between the pit and the stage, paroxysmal vocalism with a love for high-pitch tones, and a tendency to a declamatory, vociferous, mainly conversational singing style whose irregular verses and phrasing mirrored the thick talking in drama. And thus, the entire generation of Italian composers who had come to the fore in the 1860s was hastily and superficially labelled as Verismo. It included such composers as Leoncavallo, Puccini, Mascagni, Cilea, Giordano, the so-called “Young School”: among them, the audience, publishers and impresarios were eager to discover the new Verdi. Therefore, simply because they date from the period of twenty years at the turn of the XIX century, such slum or knife stories as Cilea’s Tilda, Giordano’s Mala vita, Pierantonio Tasca’s A Santa Lucia, Nicola Spinelli’s A basso porto, and Giulio Tanara’s Vendetta abruzzese were inscribed in the same group as Cavalleria rusticana and Pagliacci.

And so were Giordano’s Andrea Chénier and Cilea’s Adriana Lecouvreur, both set in eighteenth-century France, and Puccini’s Tosca: all fine examples of a “costume” Verismo where the depiction of generically human characters and feelings was more important than the reconstruction of a social environment. And thus, at the end of the nineteenth century, melodrama was far from dead, even though D’Annunzio, in 1887, had declared it to be “naturally exhausted, having produced enough”, and tried to discourage all attempts at reviving it as “useless and illogical”.

Pietro Mascagni, a 23-year-old composer born in Livorno, was a nobody when he arrived in Cerignola with the company of impresario Maresca, in December 1886. For six years, he had put great effort and hopes in Guglielmo Ratcliff, an unfinished opera that eventually premiered in 1895 with moderate success. Tired of his job as a travelling conductor for Maresca, the composer decided to settle in Cerignola, marry the company's soubrette, Lina, and create a 40-element Philharmonic, which won him the scornful nickname of "Bandmaster" by D'Annunzio. But Mascagni soon started to feel claustrophobic in the small town of Cerignola: he thought he deserved more, and when publisher Sonzogno announced a competition inviting young composers to submit a one-act opera (July 1888), he immediately started looking for a subject and a librettist, trying to win the first or second prize (respectively 3,000 and 2,000 lira). He found the right man in Giovanni Targioni-Tozzetti, a journalist and writer who had been his schoolmate in Livorno, who suggested Verga's Cavalleria rusticana. They did not work on the novel, based on a real event occurred in the Sicilian village of Vizzini, but on the play Verga himself had crafted for popular actress Eleonora Duse, which had premiered at Teatro Carignano, Turin, on 13 January 1884. The proposal was readily accepted, and Targioni-Tozzetti, with his colleague Guido Menasci, immediately set about composing the libretto, which includes several lines from Verga's original. The score was also quickly completed and submitted in May 1889.

In all, seventy-three operas were submitted; twelve were short-listed in early 1890, and three were finally selected: Cavalleria rusticana, Spinelli's Labilia and Vincenzo Ferroni's Rudello. The judges had initially been quite dubious about Cavalleria, but the opera had found a strong supporter in Giovanni Sgambati, an eminent pianist and a disciple of Liszt. The judges finally agreed that Mascagni should be awarded the first prize after attending his piano performance of the opera, in Rome, where the Cavalleria then opened at the Teatro Costanzi (now the Rome Opera House) on May 17. The excellent cast, featuring Gemma Bellincioni and her husband, Roberto Stagno, was conducted by Leopoldo Mugnone before Queen Margherita. Mascagni was no longer a nobody since then, but this début decreed both the composer's fortune and his condemnation: the opera resulted in money, fame and long-lasting international appreciation by audience, critics and such colleagues as Verdi, Tchaikovsky, and Mahler, but, from that moment on, the name of Mascagni was indissolubly and forever linked to Cavalleria. All his later operas, conceived in a continuous research for stylistic renewal and with an ear to the latest trends in European art, never worked as well as his first electrifying masterpiece, which sparked the operatic tradition of Verismo, with publisher Sonzogno as both a sponsor and a reference. Cavalleria was an immediate success, and Verga claimed his share in the profits under copyright law: after a three-year litigation, he was granted the stratospheric sum of 162,000 lira.

Even though Cavalleria is usually labelled as a Verismo opera, the story it tells and the way it is dealt with are much more than a mere chronicle, and take on a value as a universal archetype. The opera's tale of betrayal and blood is not only concerned with its own characters, place and time. Late-XIX-century rural Sicily is just a colourful accessory. The story is centred on the characters' urgent impulses, the typical passions of Romantic melodrama (based on the soprano-tenor versus baritone conflict), which Mascagni, under the influence of Verga, imbues with impetuous, carnal eroticism. All this would have been inadmissible and intolerable just a short time before. Such exploding sensuality erupted in the same way both in the male and the female protagonists, at a time when Italian women were expected to ensure pre-marital chastity and post-marital submissiveness, in a society that would never allow them to exercise desire. Here, on the contrary, both Santuzza and Lola are dominated by the same animal instincts. Like a Lady Macbeth of the Mediterranean and the instigator of the ultimate tragedy, Santuzza gets her hands dirty with Turiddu's blood: seduced and abandoned, she is more responsible of his death than nondescript Alfio, who, like a pawn in her hands, becomes the instrument of her revenge and actually commits the honour killing. If Mascagni's aim was "writing music that tasted like sperm and coffee", he did a perfect job with Cavalleria. In a necessarily concise libretto, though, the obedience to the principle of truth gets diluted into the echo of a Greek tragedy: the ritual is performed in front of the church on Easter Sunday (the place and time of the action) through the off-stage murder of poor Turiddu, which brutally clashes with the crowd of churchgoers celebrating Christ's Resurrection in the choral climax of the opera. As for the score, its "naturalist" character is softened by the adoption of melodramatic closed forms instead of the musical continuum that was typical of Wagner or even Verdi, at that time. Obviously, the choice of not moving too far away from tradition was justified by the fact that Cavalleria had been written for a competition, and was meant to juggle its way between compliance with the well-established practices of the opera genre and a necessity for novelty. A novelty which lies in the choice of a modern literary source centred on the humble social class in the South of Italy, or in the use of leitmotifs, showing that Mascagni had learnt the lesson from Wagner, even though he applied this technique in the Italian way, simplifying its function and using the recurring musical phrases to emphasize the crucial turns in the plot. Another new feature – also learnt from Wagner – was the leading role of the orchestra in the two symphonic parts (Prelude and Intermezzo). The Prelude is interrupted with a coup de théâtre by Turiddu's off-stage serenade to Lola, conveying a sense of realistic ambience obtained through theatre tricks: the sound of Turiddu's guitar is imitated by a harp, and the lyrics of his Siciliana were written by Giacomo de Zerbi from Apulia, and translated into the Sicilian dialect by the tenor himself, Stagno, born in Palermo. The choruses and strophic forms should also be read as pseudonaturalistic. Through the choruses, “Gli aranci olezzano” and “A casa, a casa, amici”, Mascagni sketches the picture of an extremely reassuring peasant environment whose innocence has nothing to do with the jealousy crime, and which serves as a frame in a fascinating contrast with the main events. As for the strophic forms, they are actually sung, and thus sound as “quotes”, like Alfio’s “Il cavallo scalpita”, Lola’s “Fior di giaggiolo” or Turiddu’s toast anticipating the final catastrophe.

The score of Cavalleria can sometimes seem sketchy or oversimplified, but it is very effective on stage due to Mascagni’s ability in going straight to the point; and even though belcanto singers are forced to beef up their voices to tackle the top notes only to rush down to the low notes in a declamatory style, the result is a genuine lyrical effusion throughout the opera. As far as screaming is concerned, it was legitimized by Cavalleria to be used in operas: in fact, the score contains fewer screams than bad performing habits have actually ratified. Thus, while “Hanno ammazzato compare Turiddu” is a real sharp cry, the lines pronounced by Turiddu and Santuzza in their fiery brawl when he tells her, “dell’ira tua non mi curo” (I do not heed your anger), and she retorts “a te la mala Pasqua” (“May your Easter be cursed”) should be perfectly sung, even though Mascagni himself had allowed his performers to actually scream (see his directions to Lina Bruna Rasa and Beniamino Gigli in the recording produced on the 50th anniversary of Cavalleria).

At the beginning of the 1980s, Ruggero Leoncavallo was literally blown away by Cavalleria. At the time, he was known as the author of several chamber romances that had met success in Paris, but was eager to be recognised as an opera composer as well. For a long time he had cherished the ambitious project of Crepusculum, an opera trilogy set in Renaissance Florence and inspired by Wagner's tetralogy. Publisher Ricordi had bought the first part, I Medici, centring on the Pazzi conspiracy, but he saw more weaknesses than advantages in it, and did not dare to produce it. Leoncavallo had already completed another score, Chatterton, whose libretto he had kept aside since its publication in 1878 in Bologna. A student of literature under famed poet Giosuè Carducci, Leoncavallo never graduated as claimed, but, like Wagner, was good enough with words to be able to write his own librettos. However, the success of Cavalleria brought about a significant change in his professional career, leading him to international success: seeing that melodrama was shifting towards Verismo, Leoncavallo wanted to try his hand at his own true blood-and-thunder crime story in the manner of Mascagni. Pagliacci premiered at the Teatro Dal Verme in Milan on May 21, 1892, with Fiorello Giraud, Adelina Stehle and Victor Maurel (who had created the role of Iago in Verdi's Otello and would soon be the first Falstaff). Leoncavallo chose not to rely on a pre-existing literary subject, but rather created an original from the same ingredients of Cavalleria. And thus, Pagliacci was conceived to be performed in one act, but was divided in two acts after the first night, due to its length. It followed the Aristotelian rule of the three unities (action, time and place), was set in a contemporary southern Italy village, depicted miserable characters dominated by their primary instincts, contained several colourful choral numbers and an orchestral Intermezzo, and was characterised by an uninterrupted symphonic flow into which the dominating dramatic melodies merged.

But the erotic charge is higher here than in Mascagni's model, and stirs the characters' blood. The language contributes, shifting from excessively solemn ("augei", "drudo", literary terms used for "birds" and "scoundrel") to almost crude (see the quite strong turns of phrase in "mi fai schifo e ribrezzo", "per la Madonna!", "meretrice abietta", respectively "you fill me with disgust and loathing", a curse and "shameless hussy"). Nedda – a programmatic name, mindful of Verga's novel – is the object of erotic desire for every male in the opera but timid Peppe. She expresses her desire for freedom in a simple ballad full of orchestral onomatopoeieses, and in an airy song mindful of the vedette of a café chantant. Her desire of wriggling out of her submission to a brutal husband, Canio, who sees his despotic ways as a form of love, develops into a passion for Silvio, a simple man of good manners and sincere feelings, whom she does not ask for true emancipation (which she could never have claimed at that time and in that social context): she only wants to surrender to him, and be dominated by him. With him, she could recreate another condition of subalternity to a man, albeit more welcoming. Tonio, the hunchback, also projects his libido on Nedda, but, fiercely scorned by the woman, he decides to take revenge by informing Canio about her affair. Leoncavallo portrays a tragic, petty microcosm, populated with complex characters that are neither absolutely good nor utterly evil, having inherited the psychological complexity of many of Verdi's characters. They are all morally monstrous, including Nedda, but none of them is guilty: they are animal creatures whose behaviour is controlled by instinct and nature. Tonio, for example, first approaches Nedda in a fearful, gentle manner: the orchestra, who never lies and expresses the voice of the omniscient author, portrays him as anxious and shy. He is not a rogue: his deformed body hides a tender heart. But, overwhelmed by the woman's sarcasm, he hides behind the shield of hate he has had to create because of his deformed body. The inhumanity he shows in the attempted rape and in denouncing Nedda's betrayal to Canio is not built-in: it has grown on him through the scorn and ridicule he sees in other people's eyes. Canio, similarly, should not be blamed for the double murder, even though he is accountable under the law. His morals consider the murder as a necessary act of purification from his disgrace. Even in this case, the omniscient composer reveals the hidden nature of this rough, jealous and irrational man: a stung, crying heart, embittered by the ingratitude of Nedda, the starving orphan he had saved from the street, raised and venerated. Leoncavallo's empathy with his characters is palpable. As a naturalist, he tries to investigate the human soul without judging it, but cannot avoid being emotionally involved in what he sees. He continually enters and exits his narrative, which is both the artistic remake of a real-life story and an intellectual abstraction; the reinvention of truth by a well-read, educated and cosmopolitan musician, trained at the Conservatory of Naples but well-aware of the latest trends in contemporary European culture.

Leoncavallo claimed that Pagliacci had been inspired by the true story of a bloodbath in the town of Montalto Uffugo, in Calabria, where he had lived as a child following the appointment of his father, Vincenzo, as a court judge. His father had indeed dealt with a similar case. The composer swore he had witnessed a double homicide by the head of a theatre company, who, after the show and unbeknownst of everyone, had cut the throat of his actress wife, wiped his knife, changed into clean clothes and gone on to kill her beloved. Vincenzo Leoncavallo is said to have sentenced the murderer to twenty years of imprisonment not for killing his wife, which was justified by his impulsive jealousy, but for premeditating the second murder. But the composer was lying. Trial papers still exist in the State Archives of Cosenza, but they tell a different story occurred in the theatre in the night between 4 and 5 March 1865, when brothers Luigi and Giovanni D'Alessandro killed a Gaetano Scavello, claiming he had beaten up one of their servants. They were sentenced to forced labour. In addition, the main source for Pagliacci is not the crime column, but a French tragicomedy by Catulle Mendès staged in Paris in 1887, La femme de tabarin, where the head of an actors' company kills his adulterous wife in front of the audience.

In any case, this opera constantly plays on the ambiguous relationship between fact and fiction, especially with Canio. Real life and its stage metamorphosis overlap, and mirror one another in a pre-Pirandellian relationship that disclaims the thesis of the opera that "the stage is one thing and life itself another". In fact, the play staged in the second part, with its disconcerting fake-XVIII-century soundtrack, serves as a sort of "verbatim quote" from real life, whose human comedy it ruthlessly mirrors in all its aspects: Colombina-Nedda, the wife of Canio-Pagliaccio, has a secret affair (with Arlecchino-Peppe in the comedy) and a second suitor whom she scorns (the hunchback Taddeo, played by Tonio the fool, who endures on stage the same pain he suffers in real life). She pronounces the same sentence twice, to Silvio and Arlecchino: "See you tonight... I shall be yours forever!". In such an artificial structure as the whole opera, the Prologue might sound strange: in it, Tonio emerges from a closed curtain dressed as Taddeo to sing the manifesto of musical Verismo, reminding the audience that Pagliacci is a true story ("Our author has endeavoured to paint for you a slice of life"), and that the feelings portrayed are not fake ("you will see men love as in real life they love... for we are men of flesh and bone"). This programmatic frame, added to the opera at the very last moment to strengthen the part of the baritone, finds a symmetrical complement in Tonio's last, fulminating line, "the comedy is finished!": these are the words of the author, who abandons his melodramatic fiction and, from the story-within-a-story of the staged comedy, directly addresses the audience as he had done in the Prologue. Thus, it makes sense that Tonio should pronounce them, while the librettos printed after the première usually assign the final line to Canio. As for disguises, the music wears several: scholars have identified a conspicuous array of quotations ranging from Beethoven to Mendelssohn to Chabrier, and an echo of Verdi's Otello in "Ridi, pagliaccio".

Synopsis

Prologue

Tonio, dressed as Taddeo, the character he will later interpret in the play, comes to the footlights to invite the audience to meditate on the Author's intentions: they will see the “ancient masks” on stage, but this does not mean that their feelings are fictitious. On the contrary, the audience is invited to appreciate that their passions may be genuine. Because “the artist is a man, and he must write for men”. In short, Tonio's speech can be considered the manifesto of Verismo opera.

Act I

The events were actually inspired by a true story, and take place in the village of Montalto, in Calabria, around 1865, in mid-August, on the Feast of the Assumption. In the hot summer afternoon, a troupe of strolling actors arrives in town: Canio, the head of the troupe, tries to convince an audience of peasants and kids to go to the evening show. Meanwhile Tonio, the company's hunchbacked factotum, gallantly tries to help Canio's wife, Nedda, to step down from the cart. Canio frowns and immediately reveals his violent nature when, while Tonio swears revenge, he darkly reminds the bystanders that he is extremely jealous: “the stage is one thing and life itself another”, and, if Nedda were to be unfaithful to him in real life, he would not tolerate humiliation, and the comedy would end in tragedy. As the bells ring for vespers, the crowd and the kids follow a few bagpipers to church. Canio, Peppe and a group of friends head to the inn. Nedda, left alone, recalls her husband's words and the glint of jealousy in his eyes: she is nervous and worried, and, in a fit of melancholy, she sings the song her mother used to sing to her when she was a child. When she is about to re-enter, she notices Tonio spying on her: oblivious of her scorn, the hunchback declares his love, and tries to embrace and kiss her. When she seizes a whip and strikes him, he threatens revenge and leaves.

At this moment, Silvio, Nedda's lover, appears and begs her to break away from Canio, quit her vagabond life when the troupe leaves the village the next day, and elope with him. Nedda reminds him to be prudent, because she fears Canio's reactions. But she is truly in love with Silvio, and, won over by his ardent and wheedling insistence, she agrees to run away with him. Tonio overhears them and hurries off to alert Canio, who bursts in just in time to hear Nedda promise: "Till tonight! And I'll be yours forever!". He chases Silvio but is unable to see his face, and Silvio manages to escape down a country path. Mad with jealousy and holding a dagger, he commands Nedda to reveal the man's name, but Peppe intervenes to disarm him, inviting him to calm down and prepare for the evening show: the villagers are coming out of church and approaching the theatre, so it is better to put off all explanations until later. Tonio also urges him to calm down: it won't be difficult to find out the man's identity. So Canio submits to the law of the theatre: the show must go on, he must resign and hide his fury and despair behind his Clown mask.

Act II

While the audience crowds into the tent, Peppe sets out benches, and Tonio invites everyone to take their seats. Nedda goes round collecting the money. Among the spectators is Silvio, to whom Nedda furtively recommends caution. The performance begins: Colombina (Nedda) is married to Pagliaccio (Canio), but has an affair with Harlequin (Peppe) and has planned to elope. Taddeo "the half-wit" (Tonio) is also in love with Colombina, who scorns him: theatrical fiction apparently mirrors the actors' dramatic situation in real life.

Colombina is listening enraptured to Harlequin's serenade, but before she can let him in, Taddeo approaches, declares his love, and is rejected. When the unexpected arrival of Pagliaccio interrupts the lovers' intimate dinner, Colombina leaves Harlequin with the same words that Nedda pronounced in the afternoon at the address of her mysterious lover. This coincidence provokes Canio's fury: for a few moments he manages to stick to the play, hammering out the questions written in the script, but, as his fury mounts, he increasingly identifies himself with the cuckolded Pagliaccio. Nedda, still following the script, implores her husband to step back into his role in the comedy. Peppe would like to intervene, but is held firmly back by Tonio, who wants his revenge. The audience follows the performance with bated breath, but only begins to sense that fiction is making way to reality ("Are they in earnest?" "It's turned dark and serious") when Canio unleashes his desperate wrath and tries to force the woman to confess her lover's name. "His name! His name!", "No!": in a fit of rage, Canio draws a dagger and stabs Nedda to death. She drops on her knees calling out Silvio's name. When the man rushes onto the stage, Canio stabs him, too. While Canio, "stupefied and motionless", drops his knife, Tonio turns towards the audience and cynically proclaims: "The comedy is over!".

Prologo

Tonio

(in costume da Taddeo come nella commedia, esce dal sipario)

Si può?...

(salutando)

Signore! Signori!... Scusatemi

se da sol mi presento... – Io sono il Prologo.

Poiché in scena ancor le antiche maschere mette l'autore, in parte ei vuol riprendere le vecchie usanze, e a voi di nuovo inviami.

Ma non per dirvi come pria: “Le lacrime che noi versiam son false! Degli spasimi e dei nostri martir non allarmatevi!”

No. L'autore ha cercato invece pingervi uno squarcio di vita. Egli ha per massima sol che l'artista è un uom e che per gli uomini scrivere ei deve. – Ed al vero ispiravasi.

Un nido di memorie in fondo a l'anima cantava un giorno, ed ei con vere lacrime scrisse, e i singhiozzi il tempo gli battevano!
Dunque, vedrete amar sì come s'amano gli esseri umani; vedrete de l'odio i tristi frutti. Del dolor gli spasimi, urli di rabbia udrete, e risa ciniche!
E voi, piuttosto che le nostre povere

gabbane d'istrioni, le nostr'anime considerate, poiché siam uomini di carne ed ossa, e che di quest'orfano mondo al pari di voi spiriamo l'aere!

Il concetto vi dissi – Or ascoltate com'egli è svolto.

(gridando verso la scena)

Andiam. Incominciate!

(rientra e si alza il sipario)

Atto Primo

La scena rappresenta un bivio di strada in campagna, all'entrata di un villaggio. A sinistra una strada che si perde tra le quinte, fa gomito nel centro della scena e continua in un viale circondato da alberi che va verso la destra in prospettiva.

In fondo al viale si scoggeranno, fra gli alberi, due o tre casette.

Al punto ove la strada fa gomito, sul terreno scosceso, un grosso albero, dietro di esso una scorciatoia, sentiero praticabile che parte dal viale verso le piante delle quinte a sinistra.

Quasi dinnanzi all'albero, sulla via, è piantata una rozza pertica, in cima alla quale sventola una bandiera, come si usa per le feste popolari; e più in giù, in fondo al viale, si vedono due o tre file di lampioncini di carta colorata sospesi attraverso la via da un albero all'altro. La destra della scena è quasi tutta occupata obliquamente da un teatro di fiera.

Il sipario è calato. E su di uno dei lati della prospettiva è appiccicato un gran cartello sul quale è scritto rozzamente, imitando la stampa: Quest'ogi gran rappresentazione.

Poi a lettere cubitali: Pagliaccio, indi delle linee illeggibili.

Il sipario è rozzamente attaccato a due alberi, che si trovano disposti obliquamente sul davanti. L'ingresso alle scene è, dal lato destro in faccia allo spettatore, nascosto da una rozza tela. Indi un muretto che, partendo di dietro al teatro si perde dietro la prima quinta a destra ed indica che il sentiero scende ancora, poiché si vedono al disopra di esso le cime degli alberi di una fitta boscaglia.

Scena prima

(All'alzarsi del sipario si sentono squilli di tromba stonata alternantisi con dei colpi di cassa, ed insieme risate, grida allegre, fischi di monelli ed un vociare che vanno appressandosi. Attirati dal suono e dal frastuono i contadini di ambo i sessi in abito da festa accorrono a frotte dal viale, mentre Tonio lo scemo va a guardare verso la strada a sinistra, poi, annoiato dalla folla che arriva, si sdraià dinnanzi al teatro. Sono tre ore dopo mezzogiorno, il sole di agosto splende cocente.)

I contadini

(arrivano poco a poco)

Son qua!

Ritornano!

Pagliaccio è là.

Tutti lo seguono
grandi e ragazzi, ai motti, ai lazzi applause ognun.

Ed egli serio saluta e passa
e torna a battere sulla gran cassa.

Già fra le strida i monelli in aria gittano
i lor cappelli, fra strida e sibili,
diggia.

I ragazzi

(di dentro)

Ehi, sferza l'asino, bravo Arlecchino!

Canio

(di dentro)

Itene al diavolo!

Peppe

(di dentro)

To' biricchino!

(i ragazzi fischiano e gridano all'interno ed entrano in scena correndo)

Ragazzi e contadini

Indietro, arrivano.

Ecco il carretto...

Che diavolerio!

Dio benedetto!

(Arriva una pittoresca carretta dipinta a vari colori e tirata da un asino che Peppe, in abito da Arlecchino, guida a mano camminando, mentre collo scudiscio allontana i ragazzi. Sulla carretta, sul davanti è sdraiata Nedda in un costume tra la zingara e l'acrobata. Dietro ad essa è piazzata la gran cassa. Sul dietro della carretta è Canio in piedi, in costume da Pagliaccio, tenendo nella destra una tromba e nella sinistra la mazza della gran cassa. I contadini e le contadine attorniano festosamente la carretta.)

Tutti
Viva Pagliaccio!
Evviva! Il principe
sei dei pagliacci.
I guai discacci tu
col lieto umore.
Evviva!

Canio Grazie...

Tutti
Bravo!

Canio Vorrei...

Tutti
E lo spettacolo?

Canio
(picchiando forte e ripetutamente sulla gran cassa per dominare le voci) Signori miei!

Tutti
(accostandosi e turandosi le orecchie)
Uh! Ci assorda!... finiscila!

Canio

(affettando cortesia e togliendosi il berretto con un gesto comico)
Mi accordan di parlar?

Tutti

(ridendo)

Ah! con lui si dee cedere, tacere ed ascoltar.

Canio

Un grande spettacolo
a ventitré ore
prepara il vostr'umile
e buon servitore.

(riverenza comica)

Vedrete le smanie del bravo Pagliaccio;
e com'ei si vendica e tende un bel laccio.

Vedrete Tonio tremar la carcassa, e quale matassa
d'intrighi ordirà.
Venite, onorateci signori e signore.
A ventitré ore!
A ventitré ore!

Tutti

Verremo, e tu serbaci

il tuo buon umore.

A ventitré ore!

A ventitré ore!

(Tonio si avanza per aiutare Nedda a descendere dal carretto; ma Canio, che è già saltato giù, gli dà un ceffone)

Canio

Via di lì!

(prende fra le braccia Nedda e la depone a terra, Peppe porta via il carretto dietro al teatro)

Le donne

(ridendo a Tonio)

Prendi questo, bel galante!

I ragazzi

(fischiano)

Con salute!

(Tonio mostra il pugno ai monelli che scappano, poi si allontana brontolando)

Tonio

(a parte)

La pagherai!... brigante!

(scompare sotto la tenda a destra del teatro. Quattro o cinque contadini si avvicinano a Canio)

Un contadino

(a Canio)

Dì, con noi vuoi bere un buon bicchiere sulla crocevia?
Dì, vuoi tu?

Canio

Con piacere.

Peppe

(ricompare dietro al teatro e getta la frusta che ha ancora in mano dinnanzi alla scena)

Aspettatemi...

Anch'io ci sto!

(entra dall'altro lato del teatro per cambiar costume)

Canio

(gridando verso il fondo)

Dì, Tonio, vieni via?

Tonio

(di dentro)

Io netto il somarello. Precedetemi.

Un contadino

(scherzando)

Bada, Pagliaccio, ei solo vuol restare per far la corte a Nedda.

Canio

(sorridendo ma con cipiglio)

Eh! Eh! vi pare?

(tra il serio e l'ironico)

Un tal gioco credetemi, è meglio non giocarlo
con me, miei cari; e a Tonio... e un poco a tutti or parlo.

Il teatro e la vita non son la stessa cosa;
no... non son la stessa cosa!

(indicando il teatro)

E se lassù Pagliaccio sorprende la sua sposa col bel galante in camera, fa un comico sermone, poi si calma od arrendersi ai colpi di bastone!...
Ed il pubblico applaude, ridendo allegramente.
Ma se Nedda sul serio sorprendessi... altramente finirebbe la storia, com'è ver che vi parlo...
Un tal gioco credetemi, è meglio non giocarlo.

Nedda

(a parte)

Confusa io son!...

Alcuni contadini

(a Canio)

Sul serio pigli dunque la cosa?

Canio

(un po' commosso)

Io?... Vi pare!... Scusatemi...

Adoro la mia sposa!

(Canio va a baciare Nedda in fronte. Un suono di cornamusa si fa sentire all'interno, tutti si precipitano verso la sinistra, guardando tra le quinte.)

I ragazzi

(gridando)

I zampognari!... I zampognari!...

I vecchi

Verso la chiesa vanno i compari.

(le campane suonano a vespero da lontano)

Gli uomini

Essi accompagnano la comitiva, che a coppie al vespero sen va giuliva.

I vecchi

Le campane...

Le donne

Andiam. La campana ci appella al Signore.

Tutti

Andiamo!

Canio

Ma poi... ricordatevi!...

A ventitré ore.

(Gli zampognari arrivano dalla sinistra in abito da festa, con nastri dai colori vivaci e fiori ai cappelli acuminati. Li seguono una frotta di contadini e contadine, anch'essi parati a festa. Il coro, che è sulla scena, scambia con questi saluti e sorrisi e poi tutti si dispongono a coppie ed a gruppi, si uniscono alla comitiva e si allontanano, cantando pel viale del fondo dietro il teatro.)

Tutti

Don, din, don, din, don, din, don – suona vespero, ragazze e garzon,
a coppie al tempio
ci affrettiam.
Din, don – diggià i culmini il sol vuol baciar.
Le mamme ci adocchiano, attenti, compar!
Din, don – tutto irradiasi, di luce e d'amor.
Ma i vecchi sorvegliano gli arditi amador!

(Durante il coro Canio entra dietro al teatro e va a lasciar la sua giubba da Pagliaccio, poi ritorna e dopo aver fatto sorridendo un cenno d'addio a Nedda, parte con Peppe e cinque o sei contadini per la sinistra. Nedda resta sola.)

Scena seconda

Nedda sola, poi Tonio

Nedda

(pensierosa)

Qual fiamma avea nel guardo!
Gli occhi abbassai per tema ch'ei leggesse il mio pensier segreto.

Oh! s'ei mi sorprendesse... brutale come egli è... Ma basti, orvia.

Son questi sogni paurosi e fole!

O che bel sole di mezz'agosto! Io son piena di vita, e, tutta illanguidita per arcano desio, non so che bramo!
(guardando il cielo)

Oh! che volo d'augelli, e quante strida!
Che chiedon? Dove van? chissà... La mamma mia, che la buona ventura annunziava, comprendeva il lor canto e a me bambina
così cantava:

Hui! stridono lassù, liberamente lanciati a vol come frecce, gli augei.
Disfidano le nubi e il sol cocente,
e vanno, e vanno per le vie del ciel.
Lasciateli vagar per l'atmosfera questi assetati d'azzurro e di splendor:
seguono anch'essi un sogno, una chimera,
e vanno, e vanno, fra le nubi d'or.

Che incalzi il vento e latri la tempesta, con l'ali aperte san tutto sfidar;
la pioggia i lampi, nulla mai li arresta,
e vanno, e vanno, sugli abissi e i mar.
Vanno laggiù verso un paese strano che sognano forse e che cercano invan.
Ma i boemi del ciel seguono l'arcano poter che li sospinge... e van... e van!

(Tonio durante la canzone sarà uscito da dietro al teatro e sarà andato ad appoggiarsi all'albero, ascoltando beato. Nedda, finito il canto, fa per rientrare e lo scorge.)

Nedda

(bruscamente, contrariata)

Sei là? Credea che te ne fossi andato!

Tonio

(con dolcezza)

È colpa del tuo canto. Affascinato io mi beava!

Nedda

(ridendo con scherno)

Ah! Quanta poesia!...

Tonio

Non rider, Nedda...

Nedda

Va, va all'osteria!

Tonio

So ben che difforme, contorto, son io;
che desto soltanto lo scherno e l'orror.
Eppure ha il pensiero un sogno, un desio,
e un palpito il cor!
Allor che sdegnosa mi passi accanto,
non sai tu che pianto mi spreme il dolor!
Perché, mio malgrado, subito ho l'incanto, m'ha vinto l'amor!
(appressandosi) Oh! lasciami, lasciami or dirti...

Nedda

(interrompendo e beffeggiandolo)

Che m'ami?
Hai tempo a ridirmelo stasera, se brami!...

Tonio

Nedda!

Nedda

Stasera, facendo le smorfie colà, sulla scena.

Tonio

Non rider, Nedda!
Non sai tu che pianto mi spreme il dolore!
Non rider, no! Non rider!
Subito ho l'incanto, m'ha vinto l'amor!

Nedda

Hai tempo...

Facendo le smorfie colà!

Per ora tal pena...

Tonio

(implorando, con dolore)

Nedda?... Nedda?...

Nedda

(ridendo)

...tal pena ti puoi risparmiar!

Tonio

(delirante con impeto)

No, è qui che voglio dirtelo, e tu m'ascolterai,
che t'amo e ti desidero,
e che tu mia sarai!

Nedda

(seria e insolente)

Eh! dite, mastro Tonio!

La schiena oggi vi prude, o una tirata d'orecchi è necessaria al vostro ardor?

Tonio

Ti beffi?

Sciagurata!

Per la croce di Dio! Bada che puoi pagarla cara!

Nedda

Tu minacci?... Vuoi che vada a chiamar Canio?

Tonio

(movendo verso di lei)

Non prima ch'io ti baci.

Nedda

(retrocedendo)

Bada!

Tonio

(s'avanza ancora aprendo le braccia per ghermirla)

Oh! tosto

sarai mia!

Nedda

(sale retrocedendo verso il teatrino, vede la frusta lasciata da Peppé, l'afferra e dà un colpo in faccia a Tonio)

Miserabile!...

Tonio

(dà un urlo e retrocede)

Ah! Per la Vergin pia di mezzagosto, Nedda, lo giuro... me la pagherai!...
(esce, minacciando, dalla sinistra)

Nedda

(immobile guardandolo allontanarsi)

Aspide! Va'! Paura non mi fai, io t'ho compreso. Hai l'animo siccome il corpo tuo difforme... lurido!...

Scena terza

Silvio, Nedda e poi Tonio

Silvio

(sporgendo la metà del corpo arrampicandosi dal muretto a destra, e chiamando a bassa voce)

Nedda!

Nedda

(affrettandosi verso di lui)

Silvio, a quest'ora, che imprudenza...

Silvio

(saltando allegramente e venendo verso di lei)

Ah, bah! sapea ch'io non rischiavo nulla.
Canio e Peppe da lunge a la taverna ho scorto!... Ma prudente per la macchia a me nota qui ne venni.

Nedda

E ancora un poco in Tonio t'imbattevi.

Silvio

(ridendo)

Oh! Tonio il gobbo!

Nedda

Il gobbo è da temersi!

M'ama... Ora qui me'l disse... e nel bestiale delirio suo, baci chiedendo, ardiva correr su me...

Silvio

Per Dio!

Nedda

Ma con la frusta del cane immondo la foga calmai.

Silvio

(appressandosi mestamente e con amore a Nedda)

E fra quest'ansie in eterno vivrai?

Nedda! Nedda!

(le prende la mano e la conduce sul davanti)

Decidi il mio destin,

Nedda, Nedda rimani!

Tu il sai, la festa ha fin e parte ognun domani.

E quando tu di qui sarai partita, che addiverrà di me... della mia vita?

Nedda

(commossa)

Silvio!

Silvio

Nedda, rispondimi:
se è ver che Canio non amasti mai, se è vero che t'è in odio il ramingar e il mestier che tu fai, se l'immenso amor tuo una fola non è questa notte partiam!... fuggi, fuggi con me.

Nedda

(con immensa passione)

Non mi tentar!... Vuoi tu perder la vita mia?
Taci, Silvio, non più... È delirio... è follia!...
Io mi confido a te, a te cui diedi il cor, non abusar di me, del mio febbrile amor!...
Non mi tentar! Pietà di me!
Non mi tentar! E poi... Chissà! meglio è partir.
Sta il destin contro di noi, è vano il nostro dir.
Eppure dal mio cor strapparti non poss'io, vivrò sol dell'amor ch'hai destato al cor mio.
(Tonio appare dal fondo a sinistra)

Silvio

No, più non m'ami!

Tonio

(scorgendoli, a parte)

Ah! t'ho colta, sgualdrina!
(fugge dal sentiero minacciando)

Silvio

Più non m'ami!

Nedda

Si, t'amo! t'amo!...

Silvio

E parti domattina?

(amorosamente cercando di ammaliarla)

E allor perché, dì, tu m'hai stregato se vuoi lasciarmi senza pietà?

Quel bacio tuo perché me l'hai dato fra spasmi ardenti di voluttà?

Se tu scordasti l'ore fugaci io non lo posso, e voglio ancor quei spasmi ardenti, quei caldi baci che tanta febbre m'han messo in cor!

Nedda

(vinta e smarrita)

Nulla scordai, sconvolta e turbata m'ha questo amor che nel guardo ti sfavilla.
Viver voglio a te avvinta, affascinata, una vita d'amor calma e tranquilla.
A te mi dono; su me solo impera.
Ed io ti prendo e m'abbandono intera.
Tutto scordiam!

Silvio

Tutto scordiam!

Nedda

Negli occhi mi guarda! Baciami!

Silvio

Ti guardo, ti bacio.

(stringendola tra le braccia)

Verrai?

Nedda

Sì... Baciami!

Sì, mi guarda e mi bacia! T'amo!

Silvio

Si, ti guardo e ti bacio. T'amo!

Scena quarta

Nedda, Silvio, Canio, Tonio e poi Peppe

(Mentre Silvio e Nedda s'avviano parlando verso il muricciolo arrivano camminando furtivamente dalla scorciatoia, Canio e Tonio.)

Tonio

(ritenendo Canio)

Cammina adagio e li sorprenderai.

(Canio s'avanza cautamente, sempre ritenuto da Tonio, non potendo vedere, dal punto dove si trova, Silvio che scavalca il muricciolo)

Silvio

(che ha già metà del corpo dall'altro lato, ritenendosi al muro)

Ad alta notte laggiù mi terrò.

Cauta discendi e mi troverai.

(Silvio scompare e Canio s'appressa all'angolo del teatro)

Nedda

(a Silvio che sarà scomparso di sotto)

A stanotte e per sempre tua sarò!

Canio

(che dal punto ove si trova ode queste parole, dà un urlo)

Ah!...

Nedda

(si volge spaventata e, scorgendo Canio, grida verso il muro)

Fuggi!...

(D'un balzo Canio arriva anch'esso al muro. Nedda gli si para dinnanzi, ma dopo breve lotta egli la respinge, scavalca il muro e scompare. Tonio resta a sinistra guardando Nedda che, come inchiodata presso il muro, cerca di sentire se si ode rumore di lotta.)

Aitalo...

Signor!...

Canio

(di dentro)

Vile, t'ascondi!

Tonio

(ridendo cinicamente)

Ah! Ah! Ah!

Nedda

(al riso di Tonio si volta con disprezzo, fissandolo)

Bravo!

Bravo il mio Tonio!

Tonio

Fo' quel che posso!

Nedda

È quello che pensavo!

Tonio

(con intenzione)

Ma di far assai meglio non dispero...

Nedda

Mi fai schifo e ribrezzo.

Tonio

(violento)

Oh, non sai come lieto ne son!

(Canio intanto scavalca di nuovo il muro e ritorna in scena pallido, asciugandosi il sudore con un fazzoletto di colore oscuro)

Canio

(con rabbia concentrata)

Derisione e scherno!

Nulla! Ei ben lo conosce quel sentiero.
Fa lo stesso; poiché del drudo il nome or mi dirai.

Nedda

(volgendosi turbata)

Chi?

Canio

(furente)

Tu, pel Padre Eterno!...

(cavando dalla cinta lo stiletto)

E se in questo momento qui scannata non t'ho già, gli è perché, pria di lordarla nel tuo fetido sangue, o svergognata, codesta lama, io vò il suo nome. Parla!

Nedda

Vano è l'insulto. È muto il labbro mio.

Canio

(urlando)

Il nome, il nome, non tardare, o donna!

Nedda

No, no nol dirò giammai...

Canio

(slanciandosi furente col pugnale alzato)

Per la Madonna!...

(Peppe che sarà entrato dalla sinistra, sulla risposta di Nedda corre a Canio e gli strappa il pugnale che getta via fra gli alberi)

Peppe

Padron, che fate!... Per l'amor di Dio...

La gente esce di chiesa e allo spettacolo qui muove... andiamo... via, calmatevi!

Canio

(dibattendosi)

Lasciami, Peppe. Il nome, il nome!

Peppe

Tonio,

vieni a tenerlo.

(Tonio prende Canio per un braccio e lo porta sul davanti a sinistra)

Peppe

Andiamo, arriva il pubblico.

Vi spiegherete.

(volgendosi a Nedda e andando verso di lei)

E voi di lì tiratevi, andatevi a vestir. Sapete, Canio è violento, ma buon...

(spinge Nedda sotto la tenda e scompare con essa)

Canio

(stringendosi il capo tra le mani)

Infamia! infamia!

Tonio

(piano a Canio spingendolo sul davanti della scena)

Calmatevi padrone... È meglio fingere;
il ganzo tornerà. Di me fidatevi.

(Canio ha un gesto disperato, ma Tonio spingendolo col gomito prosegue piano)

Io la sorveglio. Ora facciam la recita.
Chissà che egli non venga allo spettacolo e si tradisca! Or via. Bisogna fingere per riuscir...

Peppe

(uscendo dalla tenda)

Andiamo, via, vestitevi padrone. E tu batti la cassa, Tonio.

(Tonio va dietro al teatro e Peppe anch'esso ritorna all'interno mentre Canio accasciato si avvia lentamente)

Canio

Recitar!... mentre preso dal delirio non so più quel che dico e quel che faccio!
Eppur... è d'uopo... sforzati!
Bah, sei tu forse un uom? Tu se' Pagliaccio!
(stringe disperatamente il capo fra le mani)

Vesti la giubba e la faccia infarina.
La gente paga e rider vuole qua.
E se Arlecchin t'invola Colombina, ridi Pagliaccio... e ognun applaudirà!
Tramuta in lazzi lo spasmo ed il pianto;
in una smorfia il singhiozzo e il dolor...
Ah! Ridi Pagliaccio sul tuo amore infranto!
Ridi del duol che t'avvelena il cor!

Atto Secondo

La stessa scena dell'atto primo.

Scena prima

Tonio, Nedda, Silvio, Peppe, Canio, paesani, contadini.

(Tonio compare dall'altro lato del teatro con la grancassa e va a piazzarsi sull'angolo sinistro del proscenio del teatrino. Intanto la gente arriva da tutte le parti per lo spettacolo e Peppe viene a mettere dei banchi per le donne.)

Le donne

(arrivando)

Presto, affrettiamoci, svelto, compare,
ché lo spettacolo
dee cominciare.
Cerchiam di metterci ben sul davanti.

Tonio

(picchiando la gran cassa)

Avanti, avanti!
Si dà principio,

avanti, avanti!
Pigilate posto! Su!

Gli uomini

Veh, come corrono
le bricconcelle!
Accomodatevi, comari belle!
O Dio che correre per giunger tosto!

(Silvio arriva dal fondo e va a pigliar posto sul davanti a sinistra salutando gli amici.)

Le donne

(cercando di sedersi, spingendosi) Ma non pigiatevi, pigliate posto!
Su, Peppe, aiutaci!
V'è posto accanto!

(Nedda esce vestita da Colombina col piatto per incassare. Peppe cerca di mettere a posto le donne. Tonio rientra nel teatro portando via la gran cassa.)

Peppe

Sedete, via, senza gridar.

Tutti

Via, su, spicciatevi, incominciate.

Perché tardate? Siam tutti là.
Veh, si accapigliano... Chiamano aiuto...
Ma via, sedetevi, senza gridar.

(Silvio, vedendo Nedda che gira col piatto per incassare, le va incontro)

Silvio

(piano a Nedda, pagando il posto)

Nedda!

Nedda

Sii cauto!
Non t'ha veduto.

Silvio

Verrò ad attenderti.
Non obliar.

Tutti

Suvvia spicciatevi!
Perché indugiate?
Incominciate!

Peppe

Che furia, diavolo!
Prima pagate!
Nedda, incassate.

Tutti

(volendo pagare nello stesso tempo)

Di qua, di qua, di qua.

(Nedda dopo aver lasciato Silvio, riceve ancora il prezzo delle sedie da altri e poi rientra anch'essa nel teatro con Peppe)

Questa commedia incominciate.

Perché tardar?

Facciamo strepito

facciam rumore,

diggià suonaron

ventitré ore!

Allo spettacolo

ognuno anela!...

(Si ode una lunga e forte scamanellata all'interno del teatrino)

Ah! S'alza la tela!

Silenzio. – Olà!

(Le donne sono parte sedute sui banchi, situati obliquamente, volgendo la faccia alla scena del teatrino; parte in piedi formano gruppo cogli uomini sul rialzo di terra ov'è il grosso albero. Altri uomini in piedi lungo le prime quinte a sinistra. Silvio è innanzi ad essi.)

Scena seconda

Commedia

Nedda (Colombina), Peppe (Arlecchino), Canio (Pagliaccio), Tonio (Taddeo) e Silvio.

(La tela del teatrino si alza. La scena mal dipinta, rappresenta una stanzetta con due porte laterali ed una finestra praticabile in fondo. Un tavolo e due sedie rozze di paglia son sulla destra del teatrino. Nedda in costume da Colombina passeggiava ansiosa, va a sedersi al tavolo, si rialza, va alla finestra, torna a sedersi inquieta.)

Colombina

Pagliaccio, mio marito, a tarda notte sol ritornerà.
E quello scimunito di Taddeo perché mai non è ancor qua?!

(si ode un pizzicar di chitarra all'interno; Colombina corre alla finestra e dà segni d'amorosa impazienza)

Arlecchino

(Peppe, di dentro)
O Colombina, il tenero fido Arlecchin è a te vicin!
Di te chiamando,
e sospirando – aspetta il poverin!
La tua faccetta mostrami, ch'io vo' baciar

senza tardar la tua boccuccia.
Amor mi cruccia – e mi sta a tormentar!
O Colombina, schiudimi il finestrin, ché a te vicin
di te chiamando
e sospirando – è il povero Arlecchin!
A te vicin, è Arlecchin!

Colombina

(ritornando ansiosa sul davanti)

Di fare il segno convenuto appressa l'istante, ed Arlecchino aspetta!

(Siede ansiosa volgendo le spalle alla porta di destra. Questa si apre e Tonio entra sotto le spoglie del servo Taddeo, con un paniere infilato nel braccio sinistro. Egli si arresta a contemplare Nedda con aria esageratamente tragica.)

Taddeo

È dessa!

(poi levando bruscamente al cielo le mani ed il paniere)

Déi, com'è bella!

(il pubblico ride)

Se a la rubella

io disvelassi

l'amor mio che commuove fino i sassi!

Lungi è lo sposo:
perché non oso?

Soli noi siamo
e senza alcun sospetto! Orsù! Proviamo!
(sospiro lungo, esagerato)
Ah!
(il pubblico ride)

Colombina
(volgendosi) Sei tu, bestia?

Taddeo
(immobile) Quell'io son, sì!

Colombina
E Pagliaccio è partito?

Taddeo
(come sopra) Egli partì!

Colombina
Che fai così impalato?
Il pollo hai tu comprato?

Taddeo
(con comica eleganza)
Eccolo, vergin divina!
(precipitandosi in ginocchio offrendo colle due mani il paniere a Colombina che si appressa)

Ed anzi, eccoci entrambi ai piedi tuoi, poiché l'ora è suonata, o Colombina, di svelarti il mio cor. Di, udirmi vuoi?
Dal dì...

Colombina

(interrompendolo gli strappa il paniere e lo depone sul tavolo)

Quanto spendesti dal trattore?

(Colombina va alla finestra, la schiude e fa un segno; poi va verso Taddeo)

Taddeo

Uno e cinquanta. Da quel dì il mio core...

Colombina

(presso la tavola)

Non seccarmi Taddeo!

(Arlecchino, scavalcata la finestra, depone a terra una bottiglia che ha sotto il braccio, e poi va verso Taddeo, mentre questi finge non vederlo)

Taddeo

(a Colombina con intenzione)

So che sei pura
e casta al par di neve! E ben che dura ti mostri, ad obliarti non riesco!

Arlecchino

(lo piglia per l'orecchio dandogli un calcio e lo obbliga a levarsi)

Va a pigliar fresco!...

(il pubblico ride)

Taddeo

(retrocedendo comicamente verso la porta di destra)

Numi! s'aman! m'arrendo ai detti tuoi.

(ad Arlecchino)

Vi benedico!... là... veglio su voi!

(Taddeo esce. Il pubblico ride ed applaude)

Colombina

Arlecchin!

Arlecchino

(con affetto esagerato)

Colombina! Alfin s'arrenda ai nostri prieghi amor!

(si stringono comicamente fra le braccia)

Colombina

Facciam merenda.

(Colombina prende dal tiretto due posate, due coltelli. Arlecchino va a prendere la bottiglia, poi entrambi siedono a tavola uno in faccia all'altro)

Colombina

Guarda, amor mio, che splendida cenetta preparai!

Arlecchino

Guarda, amor mio, che nettare divino t'apportai!

(a due)

Ah! L'amore ama gli effluvii del vin, de la cucina!

Arlecchino

Mia ghiotta Colombina!

Colombina

(con eleganza)

Amabile beone!

(si servono scambievolmente)

Arlecchino

(prendendo una boccetta che ha nella tunica)

Prendi questo narcotico, dallo a Pagliaccio pria che s'addormenti,
e poi fuggiamo insiem.

Colombina

Sì, porgi!

Taddeo

(spalanca la porta a destra e traversa la scena tremando esageratamente)

Attenti!...

Pagliaccio... è là... tutto stravolto...ed armi cerca! Ei sa tutto. Io corro a barricarmi!

(entra precipitoso a sinistra e chiude la porta. Il pubblico ride)

Colombina
(ad Arlecchino) Via!

Arlecchino
(scavalcando la finestra)
Versa il filtro nella tazza sua.
(Canio in costume da Pagliaccio compare sulla porta a destra)

Colombina
(alla finestra)
A stanotte... e per sempre io sarò tua!

Canio
(porta la mano al cuore e mormora a parte)
Nome di Dio!... quelle stesse parole!..
(avanzandosi per dir la sua parte) Coraggio!
(forte)
Un uomo era con te.

Nedda
(scherzando) Sei briaco?
Che fole!

Canio
(serio, fissandola con intenzione)
Briaco! sì... da un'ora!...

Nedda

(riprendendo la commedia)

Tornasti presto.

Canio

(con intenzione)

Ma in tempo! T'accora dolce sposina!

(riprende la commedia)

Ah! sola io ti credea (mostrando la tavola)
e due posti son là.

Nedda

Con me sedea
Taddeo che là si chiuse per paura.
(verso la porta a sinistra)
Orsù, parla!...

Tonio

(di dentro, fingendo di tremare, ma con intenzione)

Credetela! Essa è pura!...
E aborre dal mentir quel labbro pio!
(il pubblico ride forte)

Canio

(rabbioso al pubblico)

Per la morte!

(poi a Nedda sordamente)

Smettiam! Ho diritto anch'io d'agir come ogn'altr'uomo. Il nome suo...

Nedda

(fredda e sorridente)

Di chi?

Canio

Vo' il nome dell'amante tuo, del drudo infame a cui ti desti in braccio, o turpe donna!

Nedda

(sempre recitando la commedia, scherzando)

Pagliaccio! Pagliaccio!

Canio

No, Pagliaccio non son; se il viso è pallido, è di vergogna, e smania di vendetta!
L'uom riprende i suoi diritti, e il cor che sanguina vuol sangue a lavar l'onta, o maledetta!...
No, Pagliaccio non son!... Son quei che stolido ti raccolse orfanella in su la via quasi morta di fame, e un nome offriati ed un amor ch'era febbre e follia!...
(cade come affranto sulla seggiola)

Gruppi di donne

Comare mi fa piangere!
Par vera questa scena!

Gruppi di uomini

Zitte laggiù! Che diamine!

Silvio

(a parte)

Io mi ritengo appena!

Canio

(riprendendosi ed animandosi a poco a poco)

Sperai, tanto il delirio accecato m'aveva, se no amor, pietà... mercè!
Ed ogni sacrificio al cor, lieto, imponeva, e fidente credeva più che in Dio stesso, in te!

Ma il vizio alberga sol nell'alma tua negletta:
tu viscere non hai... sol legge è il senso a te!...
Va, non merti il mio duol, o meretrice abbieta, vo' ne lo sprezzo mio schiacciarti sotto i pié!...

La folla

(entusiasta)

Bravo!...

Nedda

(fredda ma seria)

Ebben se mi giudichi di te indegna, mi scaccia in questo istante.

Canio

(sogghignando)

Ah! Ah! di meglio chiedere non déi, che correr tosto al caro amante.

Sei furba! No, per Dio, tu resterai e il nome del tuo ganzo mi dirai.

Nedda

(cercando di riprendere la commedia sorridendo forzatamente)

Suvvia, così terribile davver non ti credea!
Qui nulla v'ha di tragico.
(verso la porta a sinistra)

Vieni a dirgli, o Taddeo, che l'uom seduto or dianzi a me vicino era... il pauroso ed innocuo Arlecchino!
(risa tra la folla tosto represse dall'attitudine di Canio)

Canio

(terribile)

Ah! tu mi sfidi! E ancor non l'hai capita ch'io non ti credo? Il nome, o la tua vita!
Il nome!

Nedda

(prorompendo)

Ah! No, per mia madre! Indegna esser poss'io, quello che vuoi, ma vil non son, per Dio!

Voci tra la folla

Fanno davvero?
Seria è la cosa?
Seria è la cosa e scura!
Zitti, zitti laggiù!

Silvio

Io non resisto più!

Oh, la strana commedia!

(Peppe vuol uscire dalla porta di sinistra, ma Tonio lo trattiene)

Peppe

Bisogna uscire, Tonio.

Tonio

Taci, sciocco!

Peppe

Ho paura!

Nedda

Di quel tuo sdegno è l'amor mio più forte...

Non parlerò! No... a costo della morte!

Canio

(urlando dà di piglio a un coltello sul tavolo)

Il nome! Il nome!

Nedda

(sfidandolo)

No!

Silvio

(snudando il pugnale)

Santo diavolo!

Fa davvero...

(Le donne che indietreggiano spaventate, rovesciano i banchi ed impediscono agli uomini di avanzare, ciò che obbliga Silvio a lottare per arrivare alla scena. Intanto Canio, al parossismo della collera, ha afferrato Nedda in un attimo e la colpisce per di dietro, mentre essa cerca di correre verso il pubblico.)

Canio

(a Nedda)

A te! A te! Di morte negli spasimi lo dirai!

La folla e Peppe

(che cerca svincolarsi da Tonio)

Che fai? Ferma! Ferma!

Nedda

(cadendo agonizzante)

Soccorso... Silvio!

Silvio

(che è quasi arrivato alla scena)

Nedda!

(alla voce di Silvio, Canio si volge come una belva, balza presso di lui e in un attimo lo ferisce)

Canio

Ah! Sei tu? Ben venga!

(Silvio cade come fulminato)

Gli uomini Arresta!

Le donne (urlando)
Gesummaria!

(mentre parecchi si precipitano verso Canio per disarmarlo e arrestarlo, egli immobile, istupidito, lascia cadere il coltello)

Tonio (cinicamente)
La commedia è finita!...

(il sipario cala rapidamente)

Synopsis

A village in Sicily. Easter Sunday morning. During the Prelude, Turiddu sings a Siciliana, a serenade for Lola, the woman he had fallen in love with before joining the army. When he returned and found her married to Alfio, a prosperous carter, he consoled himself with Santuzza: he seduced her and promised to marry her, but he cannot forget Lola and has rekindled his relationship with her. The Church and an inn open onto the village square; the inn is run by Mamma Lucia, Turiddu's mother. After the villagers' songs on the festive day, Santuzza approaches Lucia to inquire about her son: the woman curtly answers he is out of town, away in Francofonte, buying wine. But Santuzza is doubtful, since she has heard rumours that he was seen walking about town the night before. Lucia becomes suspicious and invites the girl in to discuss the rumour, but Santuzza, excommunicated for her behaviour, cannot enter her house or the Church.

The two women are interrupted by Alfio's arrival with a group of villagers. His cheerful song reveals his joy in his free, erratic life as a carter, and his happiness with his faithful wife Lola. He is just back from work and asks if Mamma Lucia still has some of her fine wine. When she answers that Turiddu has gone to buy some, he says he saw him lingering near his house that morning. This confirms Lucia's suspicions. When Alfio leaves, Santuzza tells Lucia her whole story concerning Turiddu and Lola, pouring out her despair for having been seduced and betrayed. Mamma Lucia has a sad premonition, and enters the church. Santuzza stays behind, alone, and Turiddu arrives in the piazza. She confronts him about their relationship, but he continues to lie, denying his affair with Lola. When the girl urges him, he is annoyed: "Beware, Santuzza! I am no slave to your vain jealousy!". The duet is interrupted by Lola, who approaches singing a light-hearted ditty. As she makes her way into the church, she pauses to provoke them, asking Santuzza whether she is not going to Mass. The girl answers allusively that she is not going, since "only they can go who know they are free from sin". Her reply has no effect on Lola's heartless irony. As Lola leaves, Turiddu and Santuzza resume the discussion in a dramatic crescendo of anger and exasperation: she begs and implores him, but he indifferently brushes her off and throws her down to the ground. As he rushes to Mass, Santuzza hurls her curse at him: "May your Easter be damned, you traitor!". The girl is still "distraught and broke-hearted" when Alfio approaches, and cannot refrain from blurting out the whole story of Lola's affair with Turiddu. He finds it hard to believe her, but is finally convinced that she is telling the truth and thanks her. He will have his revenge upon them: "I will not forgive them; I will have vengeance before the sun goes down".

Intermezzo

Mass is over, and people emerge from the church, ready to go home. Turiddu invites Lola to stay; she hesitates, but since Alfio is still not around, she joins the tavern, where the young man intones a drinking song, an ode to wine “that banishes melancholy in cheerful happiness”.

Alfio enters, and Turiddu offers him a glass, which he gruffly refuses: “I cannot accept your wine. It would turn to poison inside me”. Turiddu understands and throws the wine on the ground: “Then, as you please!”. Everyone falls silent, and the women leave taking Lola with them. The two men embrace, and Turiddu bites Alfio’s right ear, indicating a Sicilian challenge to a duel, which Alfio accepts: “You bit my ear. I am sure we understand each other”. Turiddu admits his guilt, but is determined to go through with the fight for Santuzza’s sake and honour. Alfio coldly warns him: “I’ll wait for you outside, behind the orchard”.

Mamma Lucia enters, and Turiddu tells her that he has been drinking too much and needs some fresh air, but before leaving he asks for her blessing. He is increasingly nervous, and begs her to take care of Santuzza if he doesn’t come back, for she would be abandoned without him. Then he kisses her and rushes off. Mamma Lucia follows him for a few steps and asks why he is talking like that, but tragedy strikes: shouts are heard in the distance, “Master Turiddu has been killed!”.

(Le donne entrano in scena.)

Uomini

(di dentro)

In mezzo al campo tra le spiche d'oro giunge il rumore delle vostre spole,

O belle occhi-di-sole, a voi corriamo, come vola l'augello al suo richiamo.

(Gli uomini entrano in scena.)

Cessin le rustiche serena allietasi

da ognuno il tenero

Scena seconda
Santuzza e Lucia.

[Scena e sortita di Alfio]

(Santuzza entra e si dirige alla casa di Lucia.)

Santuzza

Dite, mamma Lucia...

Lucia

(sorpresa)

Sei tu?... Che vuoi?

Santuzza

Turiddu ov'è?

Lucia

Fin qui vieni a cercare il figlio mio?

Santuzza

Voglio saper soltanto, perdonatemi voi, dove trovarlo.

Lucia

Non lo so, non lo so, non voglio brighe!

Santuzza

Mamma Lucia, vi supplico piangendo, fate come il Signore a Maddalena, ditemi per pietà dov'è Turiddu...

Lucia

È andato per il vino a Francofonte.

Santuzza

No!... L'han visto in paese ad alta notte...

Lucia

Che dici?... Se non è tornato a casa!

(avviandosi verso l'uscio di casa)

Entra...

Santuzza

(disperata)

Non posso entrare in casa vostra...

Sono scomunicata!

Lucia

E che ne sai del mio figliolo?

Santuzza

Quale spina ho in core!

Scena terza

Lucia, Santuzza, Alfio, paesani e paesane.

(Dall'interno schiocchi di frusta e tintinnio di sonagli. Entrano in scena i coristi indi Alfio.)

Alfio

Il cavallo scalpita, i sonagli squillano, schiocchi la frusta. Ehi là!
Soffi il vento gelido,
cada l'acqua o nevichi,
a me che cosa fa?

Uomini

O che bel mestiere
fare il carrettiere
andar di qua e di là!

Alfio

M'aspetta a casa Lola che m'ama e mi consola, ch'è tutta fedeltà.
Il cavallo scalpiti
i sonagli squillino, è Pasqua, ed io son qua!
(A questo punto le coriste entrano in scena.)

Uomini e donne

O che bel mestiere
fare il carrettiere

andar di qua e di là!

(Il coro esce, alcuni entrano in chiesa, altri prendono direzioni diverse.)

[Scena e Preghiera]

Lucia

Beato voi, compar Alfio, che siete sempre allegro così!

Alfio

Mamma Lucia, n'avete ancora di quel vecchio vino?

Lucia

Non so, Turiddu è andato a provvederne.

Alfio

Se è sempre qui!... L'ho visto stamattina vicino a casa mia.

Lucia

(sorpresa)

Come?

Santuzza

(a Lucia rapidamente)

Tacete.

Alfio

Io me ne vado, ite voi altre in chiesa.

(Esce.)

Coro interno

Regina coeli, laetare - Alleluja!

Quia quem meruisti portare - Alleluja!

Resurrexit sicut dixit - Alleluja!

(Uomini e donne entrano e si schierano innanzi alla chiesa in atteggiamento devoto.)

Coro esterno, Santuzza, Lucia

Inneggiamo, il Signor non è morto!

Ei fulgente ha dischiuso l'avel.

Inneggiamo al Signore risorto oggi asceso alla gloria del Ciel!

Coro interno

Alleluja! Alleluja! Alleluja!

(Tutti entrano in chiesa tranne Santuzza e Lucia.)

Scena quarta

Lucia e Santuzza.

Lucia

Perché m'hai fatto segno di tacere?

Santuzza

(mestamente con semplicità)

Voi lo sapete, o mamma, prima d'andar soldato
Turiddu aveva a Lola eterna fè giurato.

Tornò, la seppe sposa; e con un nuovo amore volle spegner la fiamma che gli bruciava il core:
m'amò, l'amai. Quell'invida d'ogni delizia mia, del suo sposo dimentica, arse di gelosia...

Me l'ha rapito... Priva dell'onor mio rimango.

Lola e Turiddu s'amano, io piango, io piango, io piango!

Lucia

Miseri noi, che cosa vieni a dirmi in questo santo giorno?

Santuzza

Io son dannata...

Andate, o mamma, ad implorare Iddio e pregate per me. Verrà Turiddu, vo' supplicarlo un'altra volta ancora.

Lucia

Aiutatela voi, Santa Maria!
(Entra in chiesa.)

Scena quinta Santuzza e Turiddu.

[Duetto Santuzza e Turiddu]

Turiddu
(entrando) Tu qui, Santuzza?

Santuzza
Qui t'aspettavo.

Turiddu
È Pasqua, in chiesa non vai?

Santuzza
Non vo.
Debbo parlarti...

Turiddu
Mamma cercavo.

Santuzza
Debbo parlarti...

Turiddu
Qui no! Qui no!

Santuzza
Dove sei stato?

Turiddu
Che vuoi tu dire?
A Francofonte!

Santuzza

(con forza)

No, non è ver!

Turiddu

Santuzza, credimi...

Santuzza

No, non mentire, ti vidi volgere giù dal sentier...
E stamattina all'alba t'hanno scorto presso l'uscio di Lola.

Turiddu

Ah! Mi hai spiato!

Santuzza

No! Te lo giuro. A noi l'ha raccontato compar Alfio, il marito, poco fa.

Turiddu

Così ricambi l'amor che ti porto?
Vuoi che m'uccida?

Santuzza

Oh! Questo non lo dire.

Turiddu

Lasciami dunque, invan tenti sopire il giusto sdegno colla tua pietà.

Santuzza

Tu l'ami dunque?

Turiddu

No!

Santuzza

Assai più bella è Lola.

Turiddu

Taci, non l'amo.

Santuzza

L'ami...

Oh! Maledetta!

Turiddu

Santuzza!

Santuzza

Quella

cattiva femmina ti tolse a me!

Turiddu

(con forza)

Bada, Santuzza, schiavo non sono di questa vana tua gelosia!

Santuzza

(con angoscia)

Battimi, insultami, t'amo e perdonò, ma è troppo forte l'angoscia mia.

(Troncando nel sentire avvicinarsi Lola.)

Scena sesta

Santuzza, Turiddu, Lola.

[Stornello]

Lola

(dentro alla scena)

Fior di giaggiolo,
gli angeli belli stanno a mille in cielo,
ma bello come lui ce n'è uno solo.

(avvicinandosi sempre)

Ah!

Fior di giaggiolo!

(Entra in scena e si interrompe.)

Oh, Turiddu... È passato Alfio?

Turiddu

Son giunto

ora in piazza. Non so...

Lola

Forse è rimasto
dal maniscalco, ma non può tardare.
(ironica)
E voi sentite le funzioni in piazza?

Turiddu

(confuso, affrettato)
Santuzza mi narrava...

Santuzza

(con forza) Gli dicevo
che oggi è Pasqua e il Signor vede ogni cosa!

Lola

Non venite alla messa?

Santuzza

(subito, con intenzione) Io no, ci deve andar chi sa di non aver peccato.

Lola

(con forza)
Io ringrazio il Signore e bacio in terra.

Santuzza

(esprimendosi, con amarezza)
Oh, fate bene, Lola!

Turiddu

(a Lola, impacciato)

Andiamo, andiamo!

Qui non abbiam che fare.

Lola

(a Turiddu, con ironia)

Oh! Rimanete!

Santuzza

(a Turiddu, con fermezza)

Sì, resta, resta, ho da parlarti ancora!

Lola

(sempre ironica, con caricatura)

E v'assista il Signore, io me ne vado.

(Entra in chiesa.)

Scena settima

Santuzza e Turiddu.

[Seguito del duetto]

Turiddu

(con ironia)

Ah! Lo vedi, che hai tu detto?

Santuzza

(fredda)

L'hai voluto, e ben ti sta.

Turiddu
(s'avventa) Ah per Dio!

Santuzza
Squarciami il petto!

Turiddu
(s'avvia) No!

Santuzza
(trattenendolo, con ansia)
Turiddu ascolta!

Turiddu
Va'.

Santuzza
No, no Turiddu, rimani ancora.
(con dolorosa passione)
Abbandonarmi dunque tu vuoi?

Turiddu
Perché seguirmi, perché spiarmi?
sul limitare fin della chiesa?

Santuzza
(con dolore, supplichevole)
La tua Santuzza piange e t'implora, come cacciarla così tu puoi?

Turiddu

Va', ti ripeto, va', non tediarmi, pentirsi è vano dopo l'offesa!

Santuzza

(minacciosa)

Bada!...

Turiddu

(con moltissima forza)

Dell'ira tua non mi curo!

(La getta a terra e fugge in chiesa.)

Santuzza

(nel colmo dell'ira)

A te la mala Pasqua, spergiuro!

(Cade affranta ed angosciata.)

Scena ottava

Santuzza e Alfio.

[Duetto Santuzza e Alfio]

(Entra Alfio e s'incontra con Santuzza.)

Santuzza

Oh, il Signore vi manda, compar Alfio.

Alfio

A che punto è la messa?

Santuzza

È tardi ormai, (con intenzione)
ma per voi, Lola è andata con Turiddu!

Alfio

(sorpreso)

Che avete detto?

Santuzza

Che mentre correte all'acqua e al vento a guadagnarvi il pane, Lola v'adorna il tetto in malo modo!

Alfio

Ah, nel nome di Dio, Santa, che dite?

Santuzza

Il ver. Turiddu mi tolse l'onore, e vostra moglie lui rapiva a me!

Alfio

(minaccioso)

Se voi mentite, vo' schiantarvi il core!

Santuzza

Uso a mentire il labbro mio non è!
Per la vergogna mia, pel mio dolore la triste verità vi dissi, ahimè!

Alfio

(dopo un poco di pausa)

Comare Santa, allor grato vi sono.

Santuzza

Infame io son che vi parlai così!

Alfio

(prorompendo, con furore)

Infami loro! Ad essi non perdonò, vendetta avrò pria che tramonti il dì.
Io sangue voglio, all'ira m'abbandono, in odio tutto l'amor mio finì...

(Escono.)

[Intermezzo]

Scena nona

Lola, Turiddu e Coro.

[Scena, Coro e Brindisi]

(Tutti escono di chiesa. Lucia attraversa la scena ed entra in casa.)

Uomini

(a gruppi sottovoce fra loro)

A casa, a casa amici, ove ci aspettano le nostre donne, andiam.
Or che letizia rasserenata gli animi
senza indugio corriam.

Donne

A casa, a casa amiche, ove ci aspettano i nostri sposi, andiam.

Or che letizia rasserena gli animi
senza indugio corriam.

(Lola e Turiddu escono dalla chiesa.)

Turiddu

(a Lola che s'avvia)

Comare Lola, ve ne andate via senza nemmeno salutare?

Lola

Vado

a casa: non ho visto compar Alfio!

Turiddu

Non ci pensate, verrà in piazza. Intanto, (rivolgendosi al coro che si avvia, con allegria) amici, qua, beviamone un bicchiere.

(Tutti si avvicinano alla tavola dell'osteria e prendono in mano i bicchieri.)

Turiddu

Viva il vino spumeggiante
nel bicchiere scintillante
come il riso dell'amante
mite infonde il giubilo!
Viva il vino ch'è sincero,
che ci allietà ogni pensiero

e che annega l'umor nero
nell'ebbrezza tenera.

Coro

Viva il vino spumeggiante
nel bicchiere scintillante
come il riso dell'amante
mite infonde il giubilo!
Viva il vino ch'è sincero,
che ci allietà ogni pensiero
e che annega l'umor nero
nell'ebbrezza tenera.

Turiddu

(a Lola)

Ai vostri amori!

(Beve.)

Lola

(a Turiddu)

Alla fortuna vostra!

(Beve.)

Turiddu

Beviam!

Tutti

Beviam! Rinnovisi la giostra!

(Entra Alfio.)

Scena decima

I precedenti e Alfio.

[Finale]

Alfio

A voi tutti salute.

Coro

Compar Alfio, salute.

Turiddu

Benvenguto! Con noi dovete bere,

(Empie un bicchiere.)

ecco, pieno è il bicchiere.

Alfio

(troncando)

Grazie, ma il vostro vino non l'accetto.

Diverrebbe veleno entro il mio petto!

Turiddu

(getta il vino.)

A piacer vostro!

Lola

Ahimè, che mai sarà?

Alcune donne del coro
(si consigliano fra loro poi si avvicinano a Lola dicendole sottovoce) Comare Lola, andiamo via di qua.
(Tutte le donne escono conducendo Lola.)

Turiddu
Avete altro a dirmi?

Alfio
Io? Nulla.

Turiddu Allora
sono agli ordini vostri.

Alfio
Or ora?

Turiddu
Or ora!
(Si abbracciano. Turiddu morde l'orecchio destro di Alfio.)

Alfio
Compar Turiddu, avete morso a buono, (con intenzione)
c'intenderemo bene, a quel che pare!

Turiddu
Compar Alfio... Lo so che il torto è mio;

e ve lo giuro nel nome di Dio che al par d'un cane mi farei sgozzar, ma s'io non vivo, resta abbandonata...
povera Santa! Lei che mi s'è data...

(con impeto)

Vi saprò in core il ferro mio piantar!

Alfio

(freddamente)

Compare, fate come più vi piace, io v' aspetto qui fuori dietro l'orto.

(Esce.)

Scena undicesima

Lucia e Turiddu.

Turiddu

Mamma,

(Entra Lucia.)

mamma, quel vino è generoso, e certo oggi troppi bicchieri ne ho tracannati...

Vado fuori all'aperto.

Ma prima voglio che mi benedite come quel giorno che partii soldato... e poi... mamma, sentite, s'io non tornassi... Voi dovrete fare da madre a Santa, ch'io le avea giurato di condurla all'altare.

Lucia

Perché parli così, figliolo mio?

Turiddu

(con disinvolta)

Oh! Nulla, è il vino che mi ha suggerito!
Per me pregate Iddio! Un bacio, mamma!
Un altro bacio... addio!
(Fugge disperatamente.)

Scena dodicesima

Lucia, Santuzza e i paesani.

Lucia

(va in fondo alla scena e disperatamente chiama.)

Turiddu? Che vuoi dire?

Turiddu! Turiddu! Ah!

(Entra Santuzza.)

Santuzza!...

Santuzza

O madre mia!...

(Le getta le braccia al collo.

La scena si popola, l'agitazione si scorge sul volto di tutti che scambievolmente si interrogano con terrore. Si ode un mormorio confuso da lontano.

Una donna

(assai lontano, gridando)

Hanno ammazzato compare Turiddu!

(Alcune donne entrano atterrite correndo, ed una di esse grida disperatamente.)

Hanno ammazzato compare Turiddu!

Santuzza e Lucia

(gridando)

Ah!

Coro

(con terrore)

Ah !

(Santuzza cade priva di sensi, Lucia sviene ed è sorretta dalle donne del coro. Tutti restano atterriti.)

(Cala rapidamente la tela.)

Riccardo Muti

Born in Naples, Riccardo Muti studied piano under Vincenzo Vitale at the Conservatory of San Pietro a Majella, graduating with distinction. He subsequently received a diploma in composition and conducting from the Giuseppe Verdi Conservatory in Milan, where he studied under the guidance of Bruno Bettinelli and Antonino Votto.

He first came to the attention of critics and the public in 1967, when he won the Guido Cantelli Conducting Competition – by unanimous vote of the jury – in Milan. In 1968, he became principal conductor of the “Maggio Musicale Fiorentino,” a position he held until 1980.

In 1971 Muti was invited by Herbert von Karajan to conduct at the Salzburg Festival, the first of many occasions, which led in 2010 to a celebration of forty years of artistic collaboration with the Austrian festival. During the 1970s, he was chief conductor of the London's Philharmonia Orchestra (1972 to 1982) succeeding Otto Klemperer. From 1980 to 1992, he inherited the position of Music Director of the Philadelphia Orchestra from Eugene Ormandy. From 1986 to 2005, he was Music Director of the Teatro alla Scala and during his tenure he directed major projects such as the Mozart-Da Ponte Trilogy and the Wagner Ring Cycle. Alongside the classics of the repertoire, he brought many rarely performed and neglected works to light, including pieces from the Neapolitan school of the Eighteenth Century, as well as operas by Gluck, Cherubini, and Spontini. Poulenc's Les dialogues des Carmélites earned Muti the prestigious Abbiati Prize from the critics.

The long period spent as Music Director of Teatro alla Scala culminated on December 7th, 2004, in the triumphant re-opening of the restored opera house with Antonio Salieri's Europa riconosciuta.

Incredible his contribution to Verdi's repertoire, he conducted Ernani, Nabucco, I Vespri Siciliani, La Traviata, Attila, Don Carlos, Falstaff, Rigoletto, Macbeth, La Forza del Destino, Il Trovatore, Otello, Aida, Un ballo in Maschera, I Due Foscari, I Masnadieri. His tenure as music director was the longest of any in La Scala history.

Over the course of his extraordinary career, Riccardo Muti has conducted the most important orchestras in the world: from the Berlin Philharmonic to the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra, from the New York Philharmonic to the Orchestre National de France, as well as the Vienna Philharmonic, an orchestra to which he is linked by particularly close and important ties, and with which he has appeared at the Salzburg Festival since 1971.

When Muti was invited to conduct the Vienna Philharmonic's 150th anniversary concert, he was presented with the Golden Ring by the orchestra, a special sign of esteem and affection, awarded only to a few select conductors. After 1993, 1997, 2000 and 2004, in 2018 Riccardo Muti conducted the Vienna Philharmonic in the New Year's Concert for the fifth time. For the recording of this concert, in August 2018 he was awarded the Double Platinum on the occasion of his concerts with the same orchestra at the Salzburg Festival.

In April 2003, the French national radio channel, France Musique, broadcast a "Journée Riccardo Muti" consisting of 14 hours of his operatic and symphonic recordings made with all the orchestras he has conducted throughout his career. On December 14th of the same year, he conducted the long-awaited opening concert of the newly renovated "La Fenice" Opera House in Venice. Radio France broadcast another "Riccardo Muti Day" on May 17th, 2018, when he conducted a concert at Auditorium de la Maison de la Radio.

In 2004, Muti founded the Luigi Cherubini Youth Orchestra, which is composed of young musicians selected by an international committee from more than 600 instrumentalists from all over Italy.

Muti's recording activities, already significant in the Seventies, range from symphonic music and opera to contemporary compositions. His recordings have won many prizes. The recording label dealing with his recordings is RMMusic (www.riccardomutimusic.com). Riccardo Muti's social and civic conscience as an artist is demonstrated by his concerts performed in places symbolizing our troubled past and contemporary history, which he has conducted as part of "Le vie dell'Amicizia" (The Roads of Friendship) project, produced by Ravenna Festival. Concerts were given in Sarajevo (1997), Beirut (1998), Jerusalem (1999), Moscow (2000), Yerevan and Istanbul (2001), New York (2002), Cairo (2003), Damascus (2004), El Djem, Tunisia (2005), Meknes (2006), Concert for Lebanon (2007), Mazara del Vallo (2008), Sarajevo (2009), Trieste (2010) Nairobi (2011), Ravenna (2012), Mirandola (2013) Redipuglia (2104), Otranto (2015), Tokyo (2016), Tehran (2017) and Kiev (2018) with La Scala Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, the Orchestra and Chorus of the Maggio Musicale Fiorentino, the "Musicians of Europe United" – a group made up of the top players of Europe's major orchestras – and most recently with Orchestra Giovanile Luigi Cherubini.

Muti has received innumerable international honors over the course of his career. He is Cavaliere di Gran Croce of the Italian Republic and a recipient of the German Verdienstkreuz, he received the decoration of Officer of the Legion of Honor from French President Nicolas Sarkozy in a private ceremony held at Élysée Palace. He was made an honorary Knight Commander of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II in Britain. The Salzburg Mozarteum awarded him its silver medal for his contribution to Mozart's music, and in Vienna was elected an honorary member of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, Vienna Hofmusikkapelle and Vienna State Opera.

Russian President Putin awarded him the Order of Friendship, and the State of Israel has honored him with the Wolf Prize for the arts. In July 2018, the Japanese Arts Foundation announced that Muti will receive the prestigious Praemium Imperiale for Music next October in Tokyo.

He has received more than 20 honorary degrees from the most important universities of the world.

He conducted the Vienna Philharmonic in the opening concert for the celebrations of the 250th anniversary of Mozart's birth in Salzburg at the Grosses Festspielhaus. In 2017 the continuous collaboration between Riccardo Muti and the Vienna Philharmonic reached 47 years.

During the 2007 Whitsun Festival in Salzburg, Muti began a five-year project with the Cherubini Orchestra dedicated to the rediscovery and valorization of the operatic and sacred musical heritage of the Neapolitan School of the 18th Century.

In September 2010, Riccardo Muti became Music Director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and was named 2010 Musician of the Year by Musical America. At the 53rd annual awards ceremony in February 2011, he was awarded two Grammy Awards for Best Classical Album and Best Choral Performance for his live recording of Verdi's Messa da Requiem with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. In March 2011, Riccardo Muti was selected as the recipient of the coveted Birgit Nilsson Prize, presented in a ceremony on October 13th at the Royal Opera in Stockholm in the presence of H.M. King Carl XVI Gustaf and H.M. Queen Silvia. In April 2011, he received the Opera News Award in New York and in May 2011 he was awarded Spain's prestigious Prince of Asturias Prize for the Arts. The award was presented the following autumn in Oviedo at a grand ceremony chaired by H.R.H. the Prince of Asturias. In July 2011 he was named honorary member of the Vienna Philharmonic and in August 2011 honorary director for life at the Rome Opera.

In May 2012, he was awarded the highest Papal honor: the Knight of the Grand Cross First Class of the Order of St. Gregory the Great by Pope Benedict XVI.

In 2016 he was honored by Japanese Government with the Order of the Rising Sun, Gold and Silver Star.

In July 2015, Riccardo Muti's desire to devote even more to the training of young musicians was realized: the first edition of the Riccardo Muti Italian Opera Academy for young conductors, répétiteurs and singers took place at Teatro Alighieri in Ravenna.

Talented young musicians and an audience of music-lovers coming from all over the world took part. The Academy has the purpose to pass on to young musicians Riccardo Muti's experience and teachings and to make the audience understand in all its complexity the journey that leads to the realization of an opera.

The first edition focused on Falstaff was followed in 2016 by two editions, in South Korea and in Ravenna dedicated to La Traviata, by the edition on Aida in 2017 and on Macbeth in 2018 (info: www.riccardomutioperacademy.com).

Orchestra Giovanile Luigi Cherubini

direttore musicale e artistico

Riccardo Muti

segretario artistico Carla Delfrate

segretario generale Marcello Natali

coordinatore delle attività orchestrali Leandro Nannini

Founded by Riccardo Muti in 2004, the Luigi Cherubini Youth Orchestra was named after one of the finest composers of all times, born in Italy but active all over Europe. This choice underlines the Orchestra's vocation, combining a strong Italian identity with a natural inclination towards a European vision of music and culture. The Youth Orchestra, a privileged link between the Conservatoires and the professional world, set up its residence in Piacenza, and elected the Ravenna Festival as its summer home. The young instrumentalists of the Cherubini Youth Orchestra are all under 30, and come from all over Italy. They were selected through audition by a committee of top musicians from prestigious European orchestras, headed by Riccardo Muti himself. Dynamism and continuous renewal are a distinctive feature of the Orchestra, and it is in this perspective that members are only appointed for a period of three years, after which they may start collaboration with a major professional orchestra.

In recent years, under the baton of Riccardo Muti, the Orchestra has tackled a repertoire ranging from baroque to XX century music, alternating concerts in many Italian cities to important European and world tours in the theatres of Vienna, Paris, Moscow, Salzburg, Cologne, St. Petersburg, Madrid, Barcelona, Lugano, Muscat, Manama, Abu Dhabi, Buenos Aires, and Tokyo. The début of Cimarosa's Il ritorno di Don Calandrino at the Salzburg Whitsun Festival (2007) marked the first step of a five-year project undertaken by the prestigious Austrian event and the Ravenna Festival with a view to re-discovering and reviving the legacy of the Neapolitan School of music of the XVIII century. The Cherubini Youth Orchestra was the protagonist of this project as orchestra-in-residence.

The Orchestra returned to Salzburg in 2015, the only Italian ensemble invited to the prestigious Summer Festival. On this occasion, it performed Ernani under the baton of Riccardo Muti, who had already conducted it in 2008 in a memorable concert in the Golden Hall of the Musikverein, Vienna. Just a handful few months before, the ensemble had been awarded the prestigious Abbiati Prize 2008 as the Best musical venture for “the outstanding achievements that made [the Cherubini Youth Orchestra] an excellent ensemble, appreciated at home and abroad”. Besides an intense activity under its founder’s baton, the Orchestra has extensively collaborated with such artists as Claudio Abbado, John Axelrod, Rudolf Barshai, Michele Campanella, James Conlon, Dennis Russel Davies, Gérard Depardieu, Kevin Farrell, Patrick Fournillier, Herbie Hancock, Leonidas Kavakos, Lang Lang, Ute Lemper, Alexander Lonquich, Wayne Marshall, Kurt Masur, Anne-Sophie Mutter, Kent Nagano, Krzysztof Penderecki, Donato Renzetti, Vadim Repin, Giovanni Sollima, Yuri Temirkanov, Alexander Toradze, and Pinchas Zukerman.

The Orchestra had a challenging and unquestionably important role in the Ravenna Festival’s project of the “trilogies”, which saw the orchestra star in the celebrations for Verdi’s bicentenary under the baton of Nicola Paszkowski: on these occasions, the Orchestra performed 6 of Verdi’s operas, all staged at the Alighieri Theatre. In 2012, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore and La Traviata were performed on the same stage on three consecutive days; in 2013 the “Shakespearean Trilogy” followed, featuring Macbeth, Otello and Falstaff. While in 2017 Vladimir Ovodok led the Cherubini in Cavalleria rusticana, Pagliacci, and Tosca, in 2018 the Orchestra undertook a new Verdi-adventure, led by Alessandro Benigni in Nabucco, Hossein Pishkar in Rigoletto, and Nicola Paszkowski in Otello. In 2019 the Trilogy was dedicated to masterpieces like Carmen, Aida and Norma. More recently, the Orchestra has regularly tackled the operatic repertoire in several co-productions of the Alighieri Theatre, Ravenna, and some major Italian traditional theatres. From 2015 to 2017, the Cherubini also featured at the Spoleto Festival with the “Mozart-Da Ponte trilogy” conducted by James Conlon.

The Orchestra’s ties with Riccardo Muti made it a perfect match for the Italian Opera Academy for young conductors and répétiteurs, that the Maestro started in 2015: the first year the Cherubini tackled Falstaff, in the following years the attention was focused on Traviata, Aida, Macbeth and Nozze di Figaro.

At the Ravenna Festival, the Orchestra’s summer residence, the Cherubini regularly stars as the protagonist of new productions, concerts, and also the “Roads of Friendship” project, which has taken it to a number of destinations such as Nairobi, Redipuglia, Tokyo, Tehran, Kiev since 2010. In 2019, the concert, once again conducted by Riccardo Muti, was staged in Athens.
